

The House that Abraham Builds

The House that Abraham Builds celebrates unity and fellowship in the Abrahamic tradition; Jewish, Islamic and Christian congregations working together to build a home for a Kansas City family. In a world that emphasizes differences, this build helps us focus on things that bring us together to do good for those in need.

Regardless of our religious differences, we can all agree that every man, woman and child deserves a safe and decent place to lay their heads at night, on terms they can afford.

Join the effort to end poverty housing in Kansas City.

How can your congregation be involved?

- Pray
- Send volunteers
- Contribute funds
- Spread the word . . .

Habitat is a partnership founded on common ground, bridging theological differences by putting love into action. Anyone can use the hammer as an instrument to manifest God's love. Habitat founder Millard Fuller called this concept "the theology of the hammer," explaining, "We may disagree on all sorts of other things ... but we can agree on the idea of building homes with God's people in need, and in doing so using biblical economics: no profit and no interest."

Volunteers Needed for:

- Construction (no skills necessary)
- Conversation with open hearts and relationship building in mind
- Preparing meals (for construction volunteers)
- Event organizers
- Fundraising
- Furnishing house (working with family)
